

Shirley Voorhees

Interaction Dynamics Specialist

Shirley Voorhees has a deeply held belief that we were created by God for relationships; with Him first, and then with each other. Because of this belief, she is passionate about helping people build rich and rewarding relationships where no one loses, but everyone wins.

As a young mother of five, Shirley became interested in relationship dynamics as she struggled to understand the different personalities that made up her family. The powerful, life-changing information she found so transforming in her own family ignited a passion within her to share it with others.

Shirley has extensive knowledge and insight into human behavior and has been personally trained by some of the best in the field of personality studies such as Florence Littauer and Dr. Robert A. Rohm. As a Master Level Certified Human Behavior Consultant and Interaction Dynamics Specialist, Shirley provides workshops, seminars, group studies, and customized trainings that are power-packed, practical and fun.

She is a gifted communicator who is able to connect deeply with all kinds and sizes of audiences and in many different settings. She speaks to women's groups, business professionals and ministry leaders offering understanding, encouragement, hope and simple-to-apply strategies that lead to greater fulfillment, productivity and success.

She makes her home in Atlanta, Georgia, and has been married to her best friend, Ray, for more than 40 years.
